HOW BLACK IS A BLACK SHEEP -- Hottest political story on the Peninsula is that local Young Republican leaders, preparing for their big statewide bust here in September, have advised Congressman E. K. Bramblett "to stay the hell out of here while the convention is on."

SEE AN OPTOMETF -- Monterey sportsmen are wondering who the expert marksman was that shot an opossum instead of a deer last week and left it on the doorstep of a local sporting goods house with a deer tag around its neck.

NO QUEENS IN CARMEL? Some local residents are curious over how a Seaside girl was chosen to represent Carmel as its queen in the recent Monterey Fair contest. No local belles available?

SURPRISE DUE FOR CITY FATHERS -- Village fathers a few weeks back placated Monte Verde Street residents by telling them henceforth they will rent a paving mixer from Pacific Grove to mix street gravel.

All came about when the local street department used the residential boulevard to mix its gravel on. When residents were convinced that their street was being paved, the street department's men up and rolled all the gravel up, storing it for use elsewhere.

Government officials in Pacific Grove have said unofficially that they don't plan to rent their new machine until they finish their own paving--which may be a long time.

New Plan Pays $200 a Month ---Live or Die

$200.00 a month for you when you're laid up, even for life . . . plus $200.00 a month for your family for twenty-five months after your death from any natural cause—or for 50 months if death is due to accident.

That's the amazing new $200.00-a-Month Plan, announced today by a leading Chicago company.

"This plan has one simple purpose—to provide cash when it's needed most," a company spokesman declared. "It provides $200.00 a month when you're laid up by sickness or accident, even for life, and in addition pays $200.00 a month for 25 months after death from any natural cause—or for 50 months if death is due to accident."

CASH FOR DOCTOR BILLS, TOO

This exclusive Sterling Plan also pays you cash for your own doctor's actual bills over $25 up to $500 for one year's treatment for each sickness or accident. This is not a list of limited payments for specified operations, but payment according to your own doctor's actual bills.

MONEY WHEN YOU'RE LAID UP

Under the $200.00-a-Month Plan, you get $200 steady monthly income from the first day you see your doctor and as long as you are laid up—for one day, a week, a month, or even for life. And benefits are never reduced at any age.

If you are in the hospital, this plan pays at the rate of $400 a month for as long as three months —and also includes cash for home nursing care, non-disabling accidents, full benefit for non-confining illness for as long as a full year, ambulance service and other benefits.

$200 A MONTH AFTER DEATH

In case of natural death, this plan pays your family $200.00 a month for 25 months—or $200.00 a month for 50 months if death is due to accident. This means continuing income for the family after the loss of a loved one. If you prefer, payment of a $5000.00 lump sum can be arranged—becoming $10,000.00 in case of accidental death.

NO EXTRA COST TO START

The Sterling $200-a-Month Plan has no "registration fee" and no policy fee. You pay no higher premium to start, and you have the same low cost and same full benefits as long as you keep your protection in force.

The Sterling Insurance Company is a strong legal-reserve company, with over $4,400,000.00 for policyholders' protection over and above all legal requirements. Sterling is licensed under the insurance laws of this state, and has a nationwide reputation for giving good insurance value at low cost.

Get all the facts about this exclusive new $200-a-Month Plan—without cost or obligation. Simply print your name and address on a postcard and mail it to: Sterling Insurance Company, Dept. 721C 6026 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles 36, California. Mail your postcard today!

IKE CRUSADE HAS FAILED, VISITING PROFESSOR FINDS

"A crusade that never materialized," is how Dr. Currin Shields, brilliant young UCLA political science professor and radio commentator, sums up the seven-month-old Eisenhower Administration.

Shields, in seclusion on the Peninsula this summer to write a college text book on political theory, took time out this week to theorize about the -- Eisenhower Administration, the Republicans, Democratic strategy and the effect of the Korean peace on domestic politics.

Shields himself seems to be about as much an enigma to college teaching as President Eisenhower, a soldier, is to the White House.

Either that or colleges are breeding a new type of professor these days.

First off Shields conducts an explosive radio program each Sunday called "What is the Issue?" It is broadcast over KFWB, Los Angeles. He is president of San Fernando Democratic Club and is a labor union (big steel) consultant.

Outspoken and a man of definite opinions he is either a tribute to academic freedom or a young man headed for a fall.

Shields, hired away from the Yale University faculty by UCLA in 1950, points out that President Eisenhower campaigned for: Reduction of the national debt, lower taxes, lower prices and an end to collectivism.

Instead the trend, he says, has been for a "Cadillac crusade."

Interest on government bonds have been raised--a natural to increase inflation.

Tidelands have been returned to the states, or the oil companies.

Legislation has been pointedly in favor of the "big business against the small business man."

The recent emergency aid to Texas ranchers and big meat is free spending as ever a Democrat conceived.

How did this phenomenon occur? He blames it on "division in the Republican party and a failure of leadership on the part of Eisenhower."

Congress is made of the small professional politician which was under the leadership of Taft. First, they found it difficult to conceive constructive legislation since for years they had been confined to the roles of critics.

Secondly, this group is more in favor of Mr. Republican philosophy of the past and helping the small business man rather than the large.

What has happened is that Eisenhower today has practically departed from his original backers like Governor Duff and Senator Lodge.

Instead he has surrounded himself with big business executives. They think like Engine Charley Wilson: "What's good for General Motors is good for the country."

These men, however, are of a different philosophy than the Republican Congress, according to Shields.

"Raised in the era of the New Deal and in fact promoted in this period they are not averse to government spending as long as it favors their groups."

A large gallery of three - Mrs. Richard Collins, Mrs. Alexander Casey and Mrs. Robert Day - watched a Sunday session of informal "backyard" polo at the Pebble Beach Stables.

The team which dubbed itself the "Tigers" won, 6 to 2. Dick Collins captained the Tigers, his team including "Bud" Casey and Howard Leachman.

The defeated team, the "Waterlilies," consisted of Louis Brown, captain, and Ronald Stolich and Bill Wiebe.

ARTISTS WILL DANCE SATURDAY

A "surprise ending" has been appended to the pageant to be presented at Saturday night's first annual "Aqua-Bal."

The pageant was authored by Sam Brandt, late of Hollywood. John Wibby will appear as "Lorelei" and Dr. Edward Marcucci will narrate.

Sgt. Earl Stanley, president of the Peninsula's skin divers' group, promises a number of divers. Mrs. Stanley, who will also appear, won the prize for the best costume at one of the recent artists" balls.

John and Patricia Cunningham have completed arrangements for decoration of the pool and grounds of Rancho Del Monte Country Club, scene of the ball, in a South Sea Island theme.

Guests are urged to appear in costume - "anything from beachcombers to trout fishermen."

Tickets are on sale at the club, the Carousel and Carmel Valley Art Gallery; the Pebble Beach Gallery and Monterey Peninsula Country Club; Abinante's, Casa Munras and Blair Studio in Monterey, and the La Playa and Pine Inn in Carmel.

...AND DEMOCRATS WILL EAT

Final arrangements have been made for the Carmel Women's Democratic Club luncheon on Saturday, and tickets, says Mrs. Roderick Clayton, are going fast.

The luncheon will start at 12:30 at Hollow Hills Farm, Carmel Valley home of Noel Sullivan.

Miss Dorothy Donohoe, assemblywoman from Bakersfield, will be the featured speaker. Her voice will be heard over a public address system, as will music to be played during the meal.

Guests will sit at tables set around the swimming pools and on the lawns. Lunch will be served buffet style.

Committee members include Mrs. Clayton, general chairman; Mrs. E. A. H. Watson, hospitality committee head; Mrs. Douglas Carter and Mrs. James Campbell, tickets.

EMERY PORTRAIT ON EXHIBIT

A new portrait by Leslie Emery, Carmel artist, is currently on exhibit in the Carmel Art Association Gallery.

Subject of the picture is the late Dr. Francis J. Fluno, Christian Science lecturer, teacher and practitioner.

The First Christian Science Association of Oakland, California, which commissioned Emery, plans to send the painting to the Longyear Foundation in Brookline, Mass.

THEY STUCK TO THEIR KNITTIN'

Bathing suits made way for knitted suits at Carmel Valley last week when Rose Brown presented her much-heralded "different" fashion show at the Rancho Del Monte Country Club.

Miss Brown and her models - Mrs. Harry Dixon, Mrs. Kay Frates, Mrs. Harry White, Miss Pat Forsythe, Mrs. Arnold Bradley, Miss Lillian Kroll, Miss Marguerita Park and Miss Ruth Phillips - showed many unusual hand knits with accessories to match, as well as costumes created from collectors' materials, some of them over 100 years old.

Associated with Miss Brown for the show was Therese Harrington, formerly with Howard Greer.

THE RAINBOWS THAT COME IN CANS

Remember the last time you took a can of paint and stirred it up with a little imagination and some brushwork?

We'll bet it gave you a different slant on life, whether it brightened a part of your house or gave a child's toy a colorful look.

To help make your life brighter—and easier—today's paints come in every tint and hue of the rainbow. Best of all, the modern miracle paints come to you ready to use.

America's paint industry and the American Can Company virtually grew up together.

The paint companies worked out formulas for ready-mixed paints that do just about any special job you have in mind. Meanwhile, Canco developed practical leak-proof containers, with their now familiar "double-clinch" covers, to keep paint fresh during shipping and storage, until you are ready to use it.

New plants and whole new industries were able to get started when Canco developed the right container for ready-mixed paints. This meant new and better jobs, and a higher level of prosperity for us all.

Yes, by making better cans—not only for paints but for just about everything you can think of—Canco has been able to help all Americans eat better, live better and work better.

We can be proud of such teamwork between our people and our business enterprises. That's what makes America such a satisfying country to live and work in. And it promises a future—"bright as paint"—for us all.

TV AND TAXES

A $370 television set almost took the spotlight away from Monterey County's $8,750,000 budget this week.

The television set was easier to understand than the fiscal goings-on which resulted in a budget $600,000 larger than last year's and a two-cent cut in a tax rate tha had almost become an institution. First a few words about the budget and tax rate.

The rapid growth of the county and completion of the Moss Landing Pacific Gas & Electric plant provide part of the answer. Assessed values were up by $25,000-000 this year, which means a big jump in property tax revenues.

Another part of the answer can be found in the state gas tax -- increased by 1-1/2 cents per gallon by the legislature. This means more money from the state for county roads and streets. Part of that $600,000 is accounted for by a boost in county highway projects. The figure authorized reflects a $250,000 increase in this one budget.

Another answer was this year's approach to salary increases. There were no across-the-board raises for the county's 600 employees--but there were for the top brass, five of whom received $50 a month boosts and one who had to be satisfied with only a $25 monthly raise.

And finally there is the presence of Administrative Officer Walter Mansfield. His budget work and control of expenditures more than justify his salary. Under his expert guidance the county will end the year with a $350,-000 building fund--$250,000 of which is being raised by taxes this year. And he has re-activated the general fund to the tune of $100,-000. For the last few years the fund has contained less than $6,000.

And now about that TV set. After a heated debate between the California Taxpayers' Association representative and Probation Officer John Kelly, the supervisors okayed the purchase of the set for juvenile hall.

There was no argument about the need (educational, recreational and disciplinary) but the board was afraid it might set a precedent for the county hospital and the jail.

Perhaps next week we'll talk about captive TV audiences.

VALLEY OUCHES

That spankin' new organization, the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, has a catchy little motto which ends, "We're for Kisses instead of Ouches".

Last week President Byington Ford took several of his members to Salinas for a cozy luncheon meeting with Salinas chamber members, three members of the county board of supervisors and Monterey County Road Commissioner Howard Cozzens. And for two hours the mixed group talked about the urgent need to improve the Los Laureles Grade road into the Carmel Valley, and about the proposed new route which would go across the foothills from Cadematori's into the lower Carmel Valley.

At the tail end of the conference --after everyone had had his say-- Howard Cozzens was asked to comment. With a few well chosen words the road commissioner reported that the Los Laureles Grade is scheduled for re-alignment and major construction sometime in 1955 at a cost between $250,000 and $300,000. He also reported that more than one and one-half miles of the road--starting at the intersection with the Carmel Valley road--will be improved this year.

He said the improvement of Los Laureles Grade had been planned on a formal basis (including applications for federal matching funds) for four years.

All of which brought up an old question. Why do organizations and individuals go around passing resolutions and sounding off without collecting a few facts first? Howard Cozzens had the facts all the time, but it was very obvious no one asked him what the situation was.

No one kissed him after his luncheon comments, but we heard a few muffled "ouches" from boomerang-bruised Valleyites (both Salinas and Carmel) when the meeting broke up.

OUTDOORS with Dick Lamb

So far the deer hunting locally has not been too good although press releases say the kill has been larger than usual. It sure hasn't been so locally. A great percentage of the local kill has been of the little brush bucks, although one kill in the Carmel Valley Monday dressed out at a hundred and forty pounds. The deer have been getting smaller and smaller for several years, and while we don't wish to din on one subject, the conservationists would certainly like to see a doe season for at least one year.

The legislature has approved a split season for waterfowl hunting, announced last Friday. They're going to let us have a few more ducks and a sixty-eight day season.

I think this is going to help a lot. It's what we all wanted. The season will run through October 16 to November 18 and from December 8 to January 10. Last year, as you remember, we had a straight seventy-day season.

This year the daily bag and possession limit will be seven ducks, plus four pintails or widgeon, singly or in combination. Six and two was last year's limit. This early opening date ought to be very helpful to the sportsman, and it will certainly be helpful to the farmer. We're not going into full particulars of it in this column, due to lack of space, but you can get the complete dope from your favorite sporting goods dealer or from Fish and Game.

I know a lot of you fellows and gals will be going out into the woods again this weekend in the hope of getting yourself a deer. There's one thing I would like to ask you to carry in mind, and that is: PLEASE FIRE WITH CARE AND PLEASE USE CARE WITH FIRE.

In regard to the first, the period is over in which it was accepted as natural that a deer might be wearing a red hat. Under the new law, passed at the last legislature, such a mistaken impression can lead to a manslaughter charge. There is no open season on deer-hunters.

What Gun?

We've had several people ask about the comparative merits of the 30'06 caliber as against the 270. A lot of fellows would like to know which is superior and why. Well actually, when you get out to the game, it doesn't make much difference. As you should know, the ideal bullet for the 270 is 130 grains, leaving the barrel at 3140 feet per second, and its energy at 100 yards is 2340 foot pounds. Your 30'06, with the ideal bullet of 180 grains, leaving the barrel at

pets and people: HE NEVER PLAYS HOOKY

"Don't worry about me," read a note pinned to a dormitory door at the Del Monte School for Boys, Pebble Beach. "I'm sleeping with Peter."

The signature scrawled at the bottom of the sheet of foolscap was "Jeff." Beneath it, almost as an afterthought, was the paw-print of a dog.

The boy who had written the note and forged the signature rated a couple of demerits for smuggling the school's husky boxer mascot into bed with him, even though he'd left an obvious clue behind him. Taking Jeff to bed is an infraction of the rules.

But neither partner in crime very much cared. For the boys, demerits, or "termites," as they call them at Del Monte, mean a little "hard labor"--sweeping a floor, polishing a shoe or so. And anyway, it's worth it, they figure.

For Jeff, termites - he got some, too - mean only a short disciplinary period of being chained in a patio. After that he's free to attend classes, play Indians or do whatever else the boys are doing. And doing what the boys are doing is, apparently, all Jeff wants to do.

Presented to the school by Mrs. George Hart of Pebble Beach with a "for your mascot" label on his collar, Jeff takes his job seriously. When Director Robert U. Ricklefs inspects new arrivals, he inspects them too. But hardly a boy fails to pass inspection, and each student's first experience is a big, sloppy, tongue-slurping welcome from the large, ferocious-looking boxer.

In classrooms or on the tennis courts - Jeff has the run of the school - he lies quietly, a bother to no one. When play periods come, he heads up the rough-house department, though he's gentler with the younger boys than with the older ones, who give him as good as they get. They all play a game in which the younger boys ride on the shoulders of the older ones, with Jeff leaping and cavorting and pretending to try to bite the heels of the riders. So far, no one's been bitten, and it doesn't look as though anyone will.

The only time Jeff gets serious about heel-biting is when a big boy bullies a smaller one. "We call it 'bully-baiting,'" says Mrs. Chase Drake, a staff member at the school. "He just won't stand for anything like teasing."

RUSSELL'S SATAN

Bertrand Russell, possessor of one of the greatest intellects of the age, has chosen at 81 years to write his first fiction, a collection of five short stories called SATAN IN THE SUBURBS AND OTHER STORIES (Simon & Schuster, $3).

It doesn't seem likely that any one of the five will be selected for one of the "best" short story collections, but all are far above average and are particularly interesting in view of their author.

While Bertrand Russell is known to thousands here and in England, I suppose it is safe to say that few of them have read his books. He is most likely to be remembered for his early pacifism -- which landed him in a British prison during World War I -- and his supposed immorality -- which cost him a job in the mathematics department of the College of the City of New York. The thing the Babbitts didn't understand was that Lord Russell did and does possess a brave and original brain, which has never been content to see things through the eyes of others.

Many of us could do no better -- lacking Russell's mind -- to see a few things through his eyes. I refer you, for instance, to his "An Inquiry into Meaning and Truth" and his "Let the People Think" as only two of his thought-provoking works.

John F. Allen, one of the top writers on the San Francisco Examiner staff, is a former West Coast editor of Time Magazine.

But what about his dabble into fiction?

"Suddenly, and for some reason entirely unknown to me," he says in a disarming preface, "I found I wished to write the stories in this volume." He claims that his stories are not intended to point any morals and adds that if they amuse or interest the reader they will have served their purpose.

I think Lord Russell is here being a bit coy -- deliberately so, I suspect. It is hard to believe that anything pouring from that pen could ever be completely without any other purpose than to amuse or merely intrigue.

Take the title story. Dr. Murdoch Mallako, psychologically scarred by his childhood, is bent on the destruction of mankind through an appeal to the baser passions of his neighbor victims. The narrator of the tale is so disturbed by the evils the doctor thus reveals, that he first plans to destroy the world, later shifts his hatred of mankind's evils directly to the doctor.

Implicit in this and the other tales is Russell's hatred of the man who would play God, of the evils of pride, of the stupidity of mass thinking and the mass intellect. Come to think of it, these stories could stand as a marvelous text book for many of our modern politicians.

Don't think that just the same they aren't fun. They are written in a strange stylized form, out of another century and as precise and beautifully mannered as a pre-Civil War waltz. They remind me as nothing has in a long while of Isak Dinesen's "Seven Gothic Tales." The difference is that these tales of Russell's are laid in modern times. Thence comes, perhaps, a great deal of their power and charm -- the Gothic overlaid on the modern.

There comes to hand this week another book, BEST ARTICLES - 1953, edited by Rudolph Flesch (Hermitage House, $3.50), which proves, if nothing else, the wide gap between the non-fictional writing of Bertrand Russell and the pap which we get even in the best of our modern magazines.

Dr. Flesch is an expert on something known as "readability," a word which sounds fully as ugly as its meaning. The doctor would make mathematics out of English. He tears a sentence or a paragraph down, cuts away all words he considers unnecessary or above the mental level of, say, a 14-year-old child or a 3-D fan, and dubs what remains readable. The object, seen in its best light, is to bring everything down to the lowest possible reading level. In its worst light -- the one I chose to see it in -- it would turn all our reading into a flow of mental pap, unseasoned and sinewless.

I would judge that Flesch used his own system in picking the contents of this book. These "25 most memorable articles of the year" are picked from a total of 6,000 in 75 magazines.

I cringe at the thought of those that were left behind.

ALONG THE DIVIDE

For those who would visit the Rocky Mountains for scenery and for hikes, late summer and early fall is the best season.

There is little rain, only afternoon thundershowers; the air is clear so that the most distant peaks come sharply into the focus of the eye; days are warm, and swimming in the mountain lakes is not a torture but a joy.

Several areas, outstanding in scenic beauty and interest, have been set aside by the Federal government as National Parks in the Rocky Mountain Region.

The most famous of these, of course, is Yellowstone National Park, and it is consequently the most crowded. It has the most to offer to those sightseers who like to "take in" a noteworthy place and quickly advance from one "point of interest" to the next. The natural wonders of Yellowstone have almost become sideshow attractions.

There you have it: we would not recommend Yellowstone Park as a vacation place at the height of the season. However, if you've never been there before it's certainly worth a look 'most any time, and anyway the most direct route north from Grand Teton National Park, Wyo., to Glacier National Park, Mont., leads through the Park.

Most scenically impressive of the Rocky Mountain parks is Grand Teton National Park which contains a large portion of the Teton Range, an area of about 150 square miles. It is so impressive because the eastern rampart of the range rises more than 7,000 feet straight up from a wide flat valley, Jackson Hole, which is well above 5,000 feet itself.

Glacier National Park is the most interesting area, geologically. Its 1,537 square miles contain more than sixty dead and dying glaciers and some 200 mountain lakes. Most of these glaciers and lakes are relatively easy to reach in late summer. There are many good trails, both for hikers and horsemen.

Rocky Mountain National Park, next to Yellowstone, is perhaps the best-known of the parks that squat on or near the continental divide. It is heavily traveled since it is almost next door to one of the major transcontinental highways, and it doesn't take much of a detour to take in the park on the way.

Estes Park is the eastern gateway to Rocky Mountain National Park. From there US-34 enters the park, and slowly hairpins to the heights. Estes Park is also the home of one of America's better mountain guides, Paul W. Nesbit, who specializes in taking parties up Longs Peak, 14,110 feet high (topping Pike's Peak) a rugged mountain rich in impressive precipices, yet not too difficult to climb for the average tourist. On Longs Peak, thunderstorms, if anything, are the greatest risk.

US-34 is an unusual highway. It splits as it approaches the Divide -- becomes one way in each direction, and for a great number of miles travels constantly above 10,000 feet, well above the timberline. US-34 circles the whole park and joins US-40 at Granby, westbound.

Fastest route from Rocky Mountain National Park to Grand Teton Park is west on US-40 over Rabbit's Ear Pass and Steamboat Springs to Craig, north on dusty and deserted Highway 13 to US-30, west on US-30 to Rock Springs, Wyo., then north again on US-187 through the magnificent Teton National Forest and trout-rich Hoback Canyon into Jackson Hole.

There are plenty of motels at Jackson, the live town at the south end of the long, wide "hole." Jackson is a miniature Reno, being located in a wide-open county. You can play the slot machines, professional poker, blackjack, roulette and craps.

Although the Tetons are glimpsed from the south before reaching Jackson, the famous view of those jagged peaks does not unfold until several miles north of the town. There are a great many dude ranches in Jackson Hole, and Grand Teton Park itself, like other national parks, offers first-class camping facilities.

"SIGHT UNSEEN" SEEN; IS GOOD EVENING'S ENTERTAINMENT

We give "Sight Unseen," the new theater-in-the-round play at the Golden Bough Players' Circle Theater, a B-plus.

The play, a new comedy by two Californians, Warner Law and Rosemary Foster, is no "Blithe Spirit" or "Curious Savage," but it's clever and funny, full of laughs.

The situation: an Englishwoman who has had difficulty in selling the old family mansion because it's full of ghosts finds a sucker in an American woman who delights in psychic phenomena. Complications arise when the ghosts fail to perform on cue.

The ghosts are marvelous - the best thing in the show. Ramon Wilson, who plays a speechless stable boy spirit, is so likeable - without ever uttering a word! - that the audience hugs him to its heart.

Nelle Wiley, as an Elizabethan wraith, Charles Thomas, as a general who died his violent death in Cromwell's time, and Myrtlerose Craig, as a would-be courtesan who got hers before she had a chance to do much about her tendencies, are superb. Through eminently professional technique, they pull the whole production up. Another who does that is Florence Venn, who smoothly, naturally, and without self-consciousness portrays the earthy millionairess fascinated by things not of this earth.

Cal Ander, Lenore Weaver and John Blair, we feel, were miscast. Ander, whose talent for comedy was so apparent in "The Square Needle," is not nearly so adequate in a straight role. Miss Weaver is not quite believable in the English blueblood role, and John Blair, though competent, looks much too young for

WHARF NEEDS PROPS

The Wharf Players want to borrow some Spanish-style furniture and Spanish clothes.

They need the stuff as props for their forthcoming production of "The House of Bernarda Alba," which will open in a few weeks.

Meanwhile, they're still playing "Blithe Spirit" and "The Lady's Not For Burning."

"Blithe Spirit," the famous Noel Coward farce, went into the third month at the Wharf this week. It plays Friday nights. "The Lady's Not For Burning," Christopher Fry's romantic comedy, plays Saturday through Wednesday nights at the Wharf Theater in Monterey.

the part he plays.

The smaller parts are taken by Bee Mouser (fine), Ruth Velissaratos (fine) and the ubiquitous George Spelvin, who turns out, this time, to be "Pop" Smith.

Director Barbara Horder, whose extensive experience was acquired on a rectangular stage, handles her first assignment on a "central" stage well. We'll be interested to see what she does next.

Nobody got credit on the program for costumes. They're charming - particularly those worn by the ghosts, who are made to look ghostly through a simply, very successful device.

"Sight Unseen" provides a thoroughly enjoyable evening's entertainment. You'll get your money's worth this coming weekend (Friday, Saturday and Sunday) and the next. - S. S.

PENINSULA COOKS

BY SHIRLIE STODDARD

Apiec'apizza

Want to know how to make pizza?

Sorry. We can't tell you. And Carlo Lazzarino, Monterey's expert on the subject, can't tell you either.

"Anybody can put tomato and cheese on bread dough anda call it pizza," he says, shrugging his shoulders and spreading his hands. "But can I tell you just when to takea pizza outa oven? No. Can I tell you just how mucha salt? How mucha pepper? No. Noboody teacha ME how to make pizza.

"Sure, my mother make. I eat many time in Napoli. Everybody make different. You go ina restaurant, have a piece pizza pie. Or you make meal. Some pizza good, some pizza bad. Has to be cooked justa right - like filet mignola. You know?"

We know. Pizza, a large, circular pie loaded with melted cheese and lots of other good things, must be cooked just right. If it's too dry, it's terrible - tough, tasteless. If it's underdone, it's so runny it ends up on your lap.

"Justa right" is when it's moist, succulent and smells like angel dust emanating straight from heaven. You've seen it, you've eaten it, you've smelled it. But you've never tasted pizza like Carlo's pizza unless you've tasted Carlo's pizza.

The secret, he admits, is in the dough. When it's done, it should feel soft and springy to the touch - sort of bounce back when you press it with a cautious (look out, it's hot!) forefinger.

It's a secret that will die with Mrs. Lazzarino. "My wife, she make the dough, and she no tell me," says Carlo, with a wink.

But don't - if you're a good instinctive cook and like to experiment - let that stop you from having a go at pizza. Some Italian bakeries make and sell sweet or sour bread dough kneaded and ready for the oven, and for pizza, one local establishment tells us, most people use the sweet. In fact, most pizza makers don't bother to make their own dough. Only Carlo. Or rather, Carlo's wife.

As for the cheese, anybody can use any kind, but Carlo uses "muzzarella," which you can buy at most Italian grocery stores. He grates it or slices it and spreads it thickly, about a quarter of a pound per large pizza (about 14 inches in diameter).

Next come the tomatoes- sliced, or in the form of juice. Carlo doesn't say so, but the fact that he always uses a certain amount of juice with the cheese may have something to do with the lovely moistness of his pizza as compared to other people's pizza.

Then, the seasoning. Salt, pepper and oregano. Or, as Carlo puts it - probably in the order of their importance - "Oregano, black pepper and salt." How much? It's up to you.

Carlo's oven, he tells us, is about 300 degrees. Not hot, but it's lined with bricks to hold the heat. And it takes about 45 minutes of heating to get the oven just right for pizza.

Now, for the varieties. In the beginning, in Naples, pizza was just bread dough and tomatoes - no cheese - according to Carlo. Then people began to experiment. Carlo, who says, "Everybody got his own idea. I got mine," experiments constantly, using the cheese base as a starter for anchovy pizza, salami pizza, pepperoni pizza, tuna pizza, mushroom pizza, ham pizza, sausage pizza, hamburger pizza, crab pizza and a "combination" pizza, which includes a little bit of everything previously mentioned and maybe a few things more. The additions not only add to the flavor and texture but also, if spread profusely enough, prevent the cheese from forming a hard, unmoist crust.

And the cooking time? Again Carlo shrugs his shoulders. "Oh, well," he says. "Big one take 20 minutes, little ones take 15." But he doesn't sound very sure. Probably-at home or at his Custom House Cafe - he hasn't clocked his pizza for several years. "When it'sa done, it'sa done. You gotta take out just at right moments."

Let's boil all this down to a recipe the instinctive cook can use as a semi-directional guide:

PIZZA

Buy sweet bread dough at an Italian bakery. Roll out fairly thin and in a large, circular (if possible) flat pan - or pie tins if you have'n't anything larger. Sprinkle a little flour in pan first.

Sprinkle tomato juice generously over the top, smoothing out with hand so that it coats dough evenly. Have grated cheese ready, and sprinkle this VERY generously. Add anything else that seems good (if anchovies, include some of the oil from the can), season with salt, black pepper and oregano. Just before popping pizza into oven, sprinkle a few drops of salad oil over all.

Bake for 15-20 minutes in a pre-heated, 300-degree oven.

Slice, pie-wise, and serve. Pizza must be picked up like a sandwich and eaten with the hands.

Carlo Lazzarino, who is short, rotund and extremely pleasant - except when it comes to revealing secrets - has been in this country 44 years. He left his native town, Reggio di Calabriga, just after the Italian earthquake of 1908. Formerly a resident of Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia, he came to Monterey ten years ago "because the climate better." He has been a carpenter, miner, steel worker and restauranter.

He and Mrs. Lazzarino have two children - Margie, 16, and Nick, who is now an insurance salesman in San Jose. And they all like Papa's pizza.

Joseph Ataide doesn't sleep much.

He hasn't slept much for two years. He isn't sick. He's just busy.

It started when he bought a little house on 1025 Benito in Del Monte Park just outside the Pacific Grove city limits. The little house wasn't much--no double walls, for instance--but he got it at a good price (about $6,500) and it was just what he wanted because he knew what he could do with it.

And that's what caused the sleeplessnes because Joe then entered upon a very busy program: 1) he took a full-time job ("that's my meal ticket" as an illustrator at Fort Ord where he designs training posters, does cartoons and murals and whatever else is needed in the way of art at the military installation; 2) he painted on his own time and immediately won three prizes for oils at the Monterey County F ir of 1951; 3) he experimented in all sorts of other visual mediums, including a new offset process very effective in abstract art; 4) he rebuilt his home.

All that in addition to taking care of his family of four; his wife, Virginia, 28, his son, David, 4-1/2, and his two daughters, Julie, 2-1/2 and Nancy, now one year old.

His first task on the house was to double-wall it for insulation. He then finished the inside partly in redwood, partly in combed knotty pine and partly in etched plywood. He added a carport and built a studio (15 by 23 feet) on top of it. The studio, a stunning box-like redwood affair, has a big multi-sectional northlight window and is an eye-catcher when you travel along Benito which is a street that has a lot of eye-catching houses on it.

The Ataide house itself, designed originally in 1948 by an architect-teacher from Oklahoma City whose name the Ataides do not know, blends in its modern lines with the carport-studio.

The living room (25 by 12), the dining area (9 by 11) and the kitchen (9 by 10) form a circular unit around a short wall section that houses a bricked fireplace. The chimney of the fireplace extends right on through the ceiling of the living room. The ceiling slants toward a skylight above the flat roof of the dining area.

There are also two small bedrooms, as well as a tiny bathroom, which won't be enough in the near future as the children grow older. So Joe plans to turn the present carport into a third bedroom, hook it up to the house with a hallway and then to put up a new carport on the other side of the lot.

Joe has done all the work on the house himself. The improvements have cost him about $2,000. The result is that he now has a home which is worth a good deal more than the money he's got in it.

Joe was born in Fresno. He studied at the California College of Arts and Crafts and at the University of California in Berkeley, and then worked for his master's degree at the University of Washington, the State his wife is from.

His first job was as an art instructor at Lassen Junior College. Then he got a teaching job in Santa Maria, but he lost this job before he even started on it because of a sudden economy move.

"That's how I came here," he explains. "I was on my way to Santa Maria for that job, with all my furniture and everything loaded from Susanville, so I stayed with my dad for a while (Jess Ataide of Pacific Grove) and then decided I'd stay, and I rented this house and then bought it."

Since then, Joe has made his place in the Peninsula community. He has sold a good many paintings, is a member of the Carmel Art Association, has had several decorating commissions, including the Bamboo Gardens, and expects to have his first local one-man show at Pebble Beach within a few months.

Joe is not unknown outside the Peninsula either. He has recently had one-man shows in Boise, Ida., and Salt Lake City, Utah. He has started submitting cartoons to national magazines and is working on illustrations for a children's book.

While her husband works in his studio, Mrs. Ataide takes care of the children, and when she has a breathing spell, passes the time at the television set. ("That's why I bought this thing," says Joe. "Because I'm so busy. Personally it drives me nuts.") Mrs. Ataide also looks forward to eventually getting a vegetable garden at the rear of their 70 by 130 lot, for which she'll import good topsoil ("decent Fresno ground.").

TRAVEL

is number 89 and this road, winding, dipping and climbing, takes you into Yellowstone Park, a few miles to the north. Just as you pass the park boundary you may see a chuck wagon parked on a clearing off the road. All you can eat for about $2 and very good, too.

The most interesting route from Yellowstone Park to Glacier National Park leaves the park at West Yellowstone and travels along the magnificent Gallatin River to Bozeman, Mont. From Bozeman it's a hot day's ride (some 300 miles) to Glacier Park. Most direct route is via Helena, Roger's Pass and Choteau - mostly endless range land.

Glacier Park is quite a place. There is something for everybody. There are lodges for fashionable tourists -- lodges with adjoining swimming beaches, tennis courts, golf courses. There are camp grounds, cross-country trails, fishing streams and many lakes, good for fishing and swimming.

Roads lead into the park at several points: At Two Medicine, at the south-eastern end of the park (chalets, campground and store); at St. Mary's Lake, farther north; at Swiftcurrent Creek, near the northern boundary of the park. Swiftcurrent Creek spills eastward out of the park from a chain of fine lakes: Sherburne Lake, Swiftcurrent Lake, Josephine Lake and Grinnell Lake. These lakes are fed to a large extent by Grinnell Glacier.

Many perennial park visitors regard this lake area the best in the park and make it their headquarters. There is the Many Glaciers Hotel and a camp ground as well as the Swiftcurrent Cabins, government-managed, where a night's lodging is around $2 for a couple if you bring your own sheets and blankets.

The western park entrance is at McDonald Lake (Lake McDonald Hotel and Sperry Chalets, campgrounds and stores), the best swimming lake because it is the warmest. The McDonald and St. Mary's entrance are connected by Going-to-the-Sun Highway

LAMB'S OUTDOORS

2700 feet per second, gives you 2170 foot pounds of delivered energy at 100 yards, which is a little bit less than the 270.

On the other side of the picture, you have the fact that the 270 develops 14 pounds of active recoil. Fourteen pounds doesn't sound like much, but when it sets back against your shoulder, it amounts to quite a lot at the end of a day's shooting, if you get any shots.

Actually, to all intents and purposes, there is no great superiority of either caliber over the other as far as clean kills are concerned, and it comes down to a matter of personal choice between hunters.

I would like to invite you again to send in any questions you may have about sporting subjects, and I will try my best to answer them. Also, don't forget to send in a name for this column.

WHEN MRS. C. GILBERT CAMPBELL of Pebble Beach entettained the committee handling arrangements for the September 1 AWVS tea, some of them posed for this picture. A fashion tea featuring the original fall and winter collection of Helga (The Cinderella Shop) has been planned by the Monterey Peninsula unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services for Tuesday, September 1.

The tea, starting at 2:30 p.m., will be given at Double H. Ranch, the home of Mrs. Henry Potter Russell.

To get there, visitors are instructed to take the Carmel Valley road to one mile beyond Los Laureles Village, following arrows thereafter.

The event will benefit the Ashton School for Cerebral Palsy and the Monterey Peninsula Council for Mentally Retarded Children. Tickets may be purchased at the Cinderella Shop, Wells Music and Books, Graham Music Company, Carmel Work Center, Pebble Beach Gallery and Carmel Valley Art Gallery.

"GREAT BOOKS" DEMONSTRATION

A free public demonstration of "Great Books" discussion techniques will be staged Friday evening, August 28, 8 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College Union.

Milton Mayer of Carmel and Dr. J. Haggerty of San Francisco will lead a panel in a discussion of Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

Arrangements for the evening are being made by the Great Books Council of the Greater Monterey Bay Area (groups from Santa Cruz, Salinas, Carmel and Monterey) under the sponsorship of the public libraries.

How to reach the phone before it stops ringing

Rrrrinngg—there goes the phone. And before you can get to it from another part of the house, it stops ringing. But—with a handy extension telephone, you can take calls anywhere in the house! This convenience costs just a few pennies a day. And extensions are now available everywhere because they require no outside cables, wires, or central office facilities. For complete details about a new extension telephone in your home . . . call your Pacific Telephone business office.

SHIELDS ON IKE

"For instance it is inconceivable that companies like General Motors who have received so much from the government in the way of contracts, capitalization for new plants, should want the spending to stop."

Shields also points out that the big businessman unlike the small businessman is not a man who has built his business from the ground. "They are managers."

In the meantime, Eisenhower, not used to the rough waters of politics and never a man of strong domestic political ideas, has been "unable to furnish either new leadership or reconcile the groups that surround him."

Shields holds that much of the legislation accomplished by the Congress has been "due largely to Democratic support."

However, he questions the political shrewdness of Democratic Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson's policy.

Johnson's strategy is that the Democrats by supporting Eisenhower will be able to go to the polls in 1954 and 1956 pointing out that the Republicans stopped Eisenhower while they tried to help him.

Shields points out that this tends to make Eisenhower a hero and may boomerang on the Democrats.

"Seldom has success been written with a policy of me-too politics."

The Korea peace, Shields said, is a victory for Eisenhower but may well boomerang on him.

"A peace without victory is hard to stomach after two years of fighting, if the fighting breaks out again in Indo-China or some other point."

Shields does not expect the Communists "to be content."

The professor's new book, "Recent Political Thought," will be published by Appleton-Century-Crofts.

Gas and electricity are cheap in California

One of the first things that impressed Mr. and Mrs. Shipsey when they moved to California in 1950 was that gas and electricity cost far less here than in their former home. The Shipseys can also measure this bargain in another way: P.G. and E's combined rates are actually lower now than in 1938. So let low-cost gas and electricity do more of your work . . . give you added leisure.

How P. G. and E.'s low rates save the Shipseys money

Here are the appliances that make the Shipseys' attractive Chico home even more enjoyable:

The Shipseys' P. G. and E. bill (recent month) $8.48

In their former home, the same amount of electricity and gas would cost $16.03

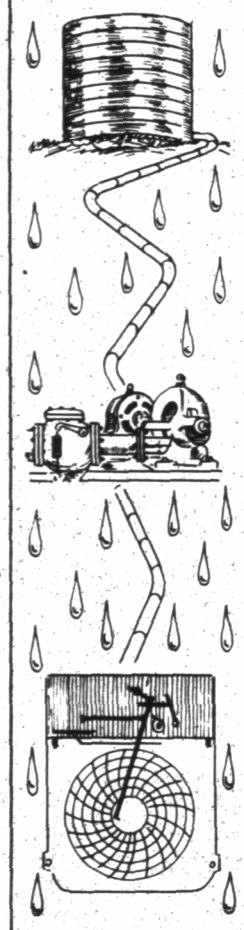
THE WATER STORY

CHAPTER 4

3 Stages of Storage



Because of the hilly nature of the territory served, and the great distance water must travel from source to service, the Peninsula distribution system is a complicated and intricate affair. To operate it efficiently, and as economically as possible in the circumstances, the system has been developed in conformity with a carefully designed pattern, a pattern which, you might say, is composed of two primary components or wings — storage and delivery. The storage wing, which we will discuss here, is divided into three stages — storage of a long-term supply, service area storage for the needs of a month or more, and local storage for daily requirements.

The first stage, which is the true beginning of things, occurs at the source of supply, at the place where the system meets directly with Nature. This storage is provided by two dams situated some thirty miles and more up the Carmel River — Los Padres Dam with a storage capacity of 1-billion gallons and San Clemente Dam with a capacity of ¾-billion gallons. Their job is to hold back some of the water which flows into the river in the rainy season for use in the dry summer months. They impound enough for much more than a year's needs.

The second stage is the storage of a month's supply within the service area. This is ..naged by two open reservoirs — Forest Lake in Del Monte Forest with a capacity of 140-million gallons and Pacific Grove Reservoir with a capacity of 25-million gallons.

The third and last stage is the storage of sufficient water for the daily needs of specific localities by means of tanks strategically placed — 26 of them — with capacities ranging from 20,000 gallons to 1,000,000 gallons. To keep these various service area storage units constantly supplied with good filtered water is the work of a series of electrically powered automatic booster pumps which operate according to water levels or schedules worked out to meet requirements.
